

I would like to say that I am flabbergasted by the ignorant people who are getting upset about the Super Bowl Halftime show. The people complaining are people that have no sense of what the rest of the world is like, not realizing that we are the most sexually repressed country in the entire world. Why is a naked breast, shot from over 20 feet away, shown for 1 second on air with a piercing, a travesty? In any other country, there would have been a three-line blurb on the back page about the event. Or most likely, a normal review of the concert, maybe mentioning how it ended, but not judging or moralizing or making it into a big deal. That women suing mtv and cbs and everyone on behalf of the american people better not get a dime, or I'm going to sue her for trying to represent me and millions of others who care less. I just wanted to let you know that there are a lot of people out there that are not upset. On the contrary, we are laughing at the ridiculousness of this, and the ensuing investigation, and the millions of dollars that have been wasted, and will be wasted, by the media and lawyers by giving this a second thought to calm the masses of ignorant sheep.
